The intern will regularly interact with external stakeholders, including city and county government, social service organizations, the business community, educational institutions, service beneficiaries, and others.

Will there be additional networking opportunities within the organization for the intern to gain expose to other roles and functions.

Global Cleveland is deeply invested in the career exploration and networking of our interns, offering numerous opportunities to connect with a broad range of stakeholders in an effort to support interns in informing their future career plans. Some events include:

- Summer in the Land: Hosted by Greater Cleveland Partnership, interns receive complementary tickets to a Cleveland Guardians Game and connect with over 1,000 summer interns at various organizations throughout the region.
- Engage! Cleveland Young Professionals Week: A week of ticketed events of young professional-focused activities, including networking, cultural activities, and more.
- Refugee Services Collaborative of Cleveland World Refugee Day Picnic: As members of the RSC, Global Cleveland encourages interns to volunteer at the picnic to be introduced to the network of service providers locally and connect with the many ethnic communities that comprise refugees living in Northeast Ohio.

Additionally, we encourage interns to express their interests to Global Cleveland staff so that we may introduce them to appropriate stakeholders. In the past, we've hosted Cleveland City councilpeople, State Department employees, nonprofit and for-profit executives, and others to connect with interns at Lunch and Learn style events.

Internship Summary

Global Cleveland seeks an intern to help advance our mission of strengthening Northeast Ohio's economy by ensuring immigrants, refugees, and international students can access workforce opportunity and meaningfully contribute to our economy.

In this role, the intern will support initiatives that expand career pathways, connect global talent to local employers, and inform policy discussions that shape the region's workforce and housing landscape. Projects may involve coordinating mentorship matches, assisting with employment referrals, building partnerships that enhance workforce training options, particularly in the building trades and healthcare industries, and preparing materials that help employers understand work authorization processes with the goal of dispelling myths and increasing enthusiasm in employing these communities. The intern may also contribute to research that supports ongoing efforts, including legislation affecting internationally trained medical professionals, among other efforts being developed by department staff.

The intern will work alongside Workforce and Policy Department staff and interact with jobseekers primarily in international student and refugee communities. The intern will also work externally, connecting with employers, social service organizations, local government, institutions of higher education, and others to advance these efforts.

Essential Responsibilities of this role?

- Assist in developing and expanding career pathways for immigrants, refugees, and international students in Northeast Ohio.
- Coordinate mentorship matches between global talent and local professionals.
- Help build and maintain partnerships with employers, training programs, and community organizations to broaden access to workforce development resources.
- Prepare and update materials that help employers understand work authorization, visa categories, and hiring processes for foreign-born talent.
- Conduct research on workforce and housing policies that impact immigrant and refugee communities. Summarize findings and provide written briefs, reports, or presentations to inform advocacy and program development efforts.
- Maintain accurate records of partnerships, mentorship matches, and participant outcomes.
- Provide general administrative support to ensure smooth execution of day-to-day program operations.
